Cohongoroota

This edition of the Cohongoroota is dedicated to the progress which Shepherd College has made toward academic excellence, in physical growth, and social development. This yearbook is a memorial to the growth and development of our college in recent years and a confident prediction of even greater attainment in the future.

Students, faculty, and administration in their diverse ways unite to build on the heritage of the past for the strength and promise of the future. Supported by the people of West Virginia, encouraged by the citizens of the College service area, and stimulated by an increasing number of able young men and women, the growth of the campus and the development of the academic program of Shepherd College gain momentum each year. As individuals mature through the college disciplines, so the institution matures in its role of service.

McMurrin Scholars

The McMurrin Scholar award is the highest honor which can be presented to a Shepherd College student. Established only three years ago, it has become the goal of outstanding students who wish to keep the academic pace set by the rapid advances of the College. The award is evidence of Shepherd's faith in the ability of its students and of the high value placed upon academic excellence.

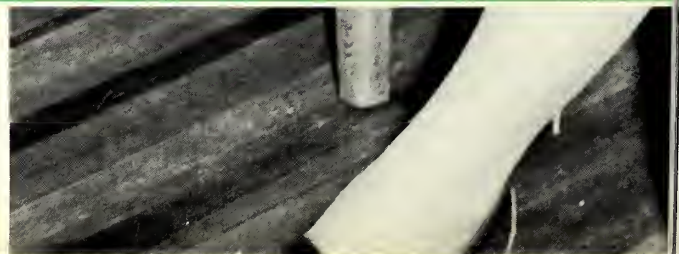

Dr. Carl Bell presented Aretho Chomp, Deon Gordon Slonoker presided, and Ann Shanholtz was presented by Dr. Charles Atherton.

At the annual Leadership Conference, students, faculty, and members of administration, dedicated to the advancement of Shepherd College, meet to discuss ideas for future improvement. The existence of a yearly Leadership Conference underlines the fact that Shepherd College produces students capable of leading. Many of these students receive deserved recognition by being named to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. It is to these individuals that Shepherd College has turned for leadership in the past, and it will be through the continued efforts of these outstanding students that Shepherd will continue to grow.

Building for Future Development of College Students

Mr. Floyd Miller, Librarian, speaking at ground-breaking

Shepherd Library—First Floor Plan

For the fourth time in four years, Shepherd College was the site of a ground-breaking assembly. With this ceremony began the greatest and most significant single building project in Shepherd's history. The new library, a tribute to those who proceeded and a promise of improved development of students in the future, will become the hub of all academic activity; and from these new rooms of our academic nucleus will come students who are better trained and more adequately fitted for future fulfillment of present dreams.

The Influence of the College Extends

Visiting Consultant

In addition to workshops and conferences arranged for teachers of the Shepherd College area, formal education in classes taught by competent instructors is offered to adults in the College community. Sponsored by the Home Economics Department and typical of the opportunities available, one of the most successful conferences was a class in interior decorating, in which women and men of the area, interested in the improvement of their living conditions and of themselves, studied principles of design which they could apply in the beautification of their own homes.

Industries, of vital importance to the College community, turn to Shepherd College to read the pulse of our growing area. Located on the campus is the Area Research and Development Center, using the facilities of the College and affording selected Shepherd College students experience in research work, which constitutes a part of college course work and contributes to the Center's basic socio-economic study of the region. Stressing goals in recreation, industrial development, transportation, education, and planning, the Center continues its promotion of the economic and cultural welfare of the Eastern Panhandle counties.

Through conferences for high school journalists, future teachers, dramatists, musicians, and athletes, Shepherd College encourages the development of its resources in people for the future. Pictured are consultants for Journalism Conference.

Growth and Development Through

The major event of the fall season occurs soon after students have become accustomed to the college routine. Homecoming, with the excitement of the game, the beauty of the Queen and her court, and the opportunities for meeting old friends at the barbecue, cider party, and Homecoming Ball, calls alumni back to the campus—to become a part of the excitement of the day, to see how the Campus has grown.

Student Activities

A refreshing occasion after months of dreary weather and study, the annual Queen's Ball is welcomed by Shepherd College students as an indication that spring has arrived and the school year will soon end. The Queen's Ball highlighted by the crowning of Queen Shepherd, was the climax of a Spring Weekend, including the Fine Arts Festival, a barbecue, a boatrace on the Potomac, and a hootenanny.

The cultural growth of the student, essential to complete development, is nurtured through Shepherd College's cultural program, which includes carefully chosen films and guest speakers and performers. Representative of the quality, and variety of campus guests are the Kapells, a talented vocal duo, and Dr. Kenneth Brown, a distinguished author and one of a series of Danforth Visiting Lectures, who have appeared at Shepherd College for several years and spoken in classes, faculty meetings, and public lectures.

The "Fireside Chat" of the Family Living Conference featured a panel: Mr. and Mrs. Tam Carr, Dr. Emerson Coyle, and Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Whitmore with Mr. Richard Judd as moderator.

A mature philosophy develops through participation in special conferences, which give students a deeper understanding of their beliefs and of themselves. Conferences built on topics of personal concern, such as spiritual growth, marriage, and family living, provide an opportunity to question, learn, and grow.

Secretary Freeman: "—So as we take a quick look at the history of man, we find the Agricultural Revolution . . . the Industrial Revolution . . . and now the Revolution of Abundance . . . And the third revolution is the most unique and far-reaching of all . . . for it is on an entirely new dimension to human experience . . . The revolution of abundance can lead to new dimensions of a life and society greater than ever before . . . or to the end of civilization; we can reach out to new planets . . . or we can destroy this planet. This is the challenge of abundance."

McMurran Hall

Erected by Rezin D. Shepherd in 1860 for community use, McMurran Hall is the original Shepherd College Building. This stately edifice is named in honor of Joseph McMurran, "Father of Shepherd College." In addition to music classrooms and offices, McMurran Hall serves as a center for art exhibits, musicales, receptions and teas. Adjoining this building is Reynolds Hall, the College auditorium.

Physical Facilities

Knutti Hall

Knutti Hall, named in honor of President John G. Knutti, is a three-story building which was erected in 1904. This building accomodates the college administrative staff, contains numerous classrooms including the education laboratory and reading clinic, and art studios.

President Knutti

White Hall

Named in honor of W.H.S. White, a former President of Shepherd College, White Hall was erected in 1925 as the first physical education building. Since that time, this building has been extensively renovated to provide new and better facilities for the business administration division and the Area and Research Development Center.

Snyder Science Hall

Named in honor of the late H. L. Snyder, Snyder Science Hall is a three-story building erected in 1942. This building houses the chemistry, physics, biology, and mathematics departments of Shepherd College. Contained in the building are a museum, a bacteria culture room, plant room, and laboratories for physics, biology, chemistry, clothing, and faculty offices.

Miller Hall

Built in 1915, Miller Hall is a three-story colonial residence hall which has been allocated to the use of freshman women. This building, standing majestically facing the scenic Blue Ridge Mountains, is named in honor of a former Shepherd College President, Thomas C. Miller.

Turner Hall

Dedicated in October, 1961, and named in honor of Miss Ella May Turner, Professor of English, Turner Hall is a residence hall for women. It is a modern three-story brick structure, which houses 154 women and provides women students with an opportunity for group living.

College Dining Hall

Situated on a commanding site of the Potomac River, the Men's Residence Hall, a modern three-story fireproof structure, provides housing facilities for 150 students.

The College Dining Hall, seating 450 students, has been the setting for regular student meals, faculty meetings, student banquets, and organization dinners. This attractive cafeteria service includes a modern kitchen, a large room for student dining, and the Rose Room for more formal dining.

Health and Physical Education Building

The Health and Physical Education Building, dedicated in 1950, provides an opportunity for all students to participate in formal classroom learning and in variety of recreational activities. This modern building contains the College health center, two basketball courts, an Olympic-size swimming pool, and other athletic facilities. The entrance lounge holds the trophies earned by the Shepherd Rams.

Acquired in 1957 from Jefferson County, the Social Science Hall serves as a classroom building and provides facilities for economics, history, political science, geography, sociology, foreign languages, and English classes. This building serves also as the center for student publications.

Social Science Hall

Popodicon Farm—With the purchase of this 126 acre estate adjoining the campus north of Miller Hall on the Shepherd Grade road, long-range plans for a growing Shepherd College became possible. The Campus increased from 35 acres to 161, gained land for additional academic buildings and residence halls, and acquired a lovely brick residence for the President's home.

Home Economics Building

Following the completion of the new College Dining Hall in 1961, the Home Economics Building was renovated and equipped to house classes and laboratory activities of the Home Economics Division. The Home Management Residence, another building allocated to the use of the Home Economics Division, offers an opportunity for all home economics students to gain experience in group living through application of knowledge and skills in making a home.

Between the formal convocation opening the college to the impressive commencement exercises closing the academic year, Shepherd College students are offered educational programs, leadership opportunities, and other valuable activities for leisure time. Campus activities which may culminate in honors and awards add to a full college life.

Center for Recreation

Many extracurricular and recreational activities originate in the College Center, the newest addition to the Campus. One of the main attractions in the Center is the Ram's Den, featuring its snack bar—soft drinks, a variety of sandwiches, plate lunches and gallons of coffee. Here students argue over many lively card games and plan other invigorating activities. The Center sponsors such recreational activities as bowling, billiards, shuffle board, chess, and table tennis.

Intramurals

At Shepherd College, the intramural program is an integral part of the physical education curriculum. During the school year, students, male and female alike, are provided the opportunity for participating in a diversified program including touch football, basketball, tennis, handball, softball, table tennis, badminton, archery and squash. The intramural program also allows students to gain practical experience in the techniques of officiating and supervision. A large percentage of the student body takes part in intramurals.

Football

It was a great season on the gridiron for Shepherd College. Jesse Riggleman, who has had a knack for turning out winning teams, tutored the Rams to a 7-1-1 regular season record, the best since the undefeated team of 1955. Shepherd scored 154 points in victories over Fairmont, Frostburg, Shippensburg, Potomac State, Gallaudet, Western Maryland and Bridgewater and a 21-21 tie with Concord. Opponents pushed across 95 tallies, including the 26 by Wesleyan in the final game and the only defeat of the season. Teamwork was the prime reason for the success of the Rams. Injuries plagued Riggleman most of the season, but time and again his players filled in with double duty and did it well. Individually, Wayman Everly was second in the WVIAC in pass receiving and Sam Taylor finished high among the rushers.

Coach Carl Hartman's basketball team, faced with one of the toughest schedules in the history of the school, finished with a 5-17 record. The Rams preserved their dubious distinction of never having won in the post-season W.V.I.A.C. tourney by losing their finale to Wesleyan. Hartman had a short, inexperienced squad which played brilliantly at times and sub-par at others. It was a season in which Bill Thompson, the team's leading scorer, was declared ineligible at mid-season. The freshman crop was quantitative and one, Art Hodges, worked his way into the starting unit. Shepherd gave its best and nearly upset such powers as Mount St. Mary's, the Quantico Marines, and Catholic University.

The latest edition of the Shepherd College swimming team was a courageous one which battled a lack of manpower all season. The trophy in the picture above symbolizes the third West Virginia Conference championship in four years for Prof. Erwin Fieger's charges. Following the script of the season before, the Ram tankmen lost three of their first five meets and were headed exactly nowhere. The hard-hitting Rams belted the ball at a .293 clip as a team and enjoyed the steady hurling of Bill Funkhouser, Bruce Penuel, Tom Henderson and Fred Wendt. Freshmen Leo Duncan, Casey Delauter and Roland Hamilton moved right into starting lineup and turned in workmanlike jobs. Transfer student Carl Bowie paced the club in hitting and runs batted in. The final record was the best for a Shepherd baseball team in four seasons.

Carl Bowie hit a resounding .419 to lead the team at the plate.

Bill Keller, one of the most outstanding linebackers ever to play at Shepherd, was duly honored as the most valuable athlete at the annual spring awards banquet. Keller, shown here accepting his trophy from Bill Rinehart, basketball and baseball coach at George Washington University, was all W.V.I.A.C. two years ago and made the second team as a senior. He was credited with 78 unassisted tackles in the Rams' nine games last fall.

The social organizations aid in the development of social competence in their members and contribute to the organized social programs of the college. Though many of the social activities are sponsored by sororities and fraternities, many students share in a diversified social life—informal dancing in the Ram's Den and on the tennis court, picnics, banquets, and hayrides.

Editor's Note

At the Honors and Awards Assembly, Mrs. Veta Lee Smith, Advisor, presents Ray W. Ludwig with Shepherd's first yearbook award.

As I relive the many experiences—some frustrating and some rewarding—of the past year, it is with much sincerity that I thank those who have helped to produce this book. The completion of a yearbook demands the combined efforts of many students working toward the final draft. The advice, the knowledge, and the moral encouragement of this year's staff made this edition of the Cohongoroota a reality.

Each year has its own special story, and the staff has worked to portray in copy and pictures something tangible for each student to remember; for this Cohongoroota will be read and treasured for many years. It is my hope that as you leaf through its pages you will remember with nostalgia your college days of 1963-64 at Shepherd.

To all those who have contributed to this Cohongoroota, to a hard-working staff, and to our advisor, I want to say—thank you.

Ray W. Ludwig
